The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR

Executive Secretary
Agricultural Council of California

State Relief Administrator Walter Chambers, in a recent declaration of policy, announced that there would be a tightening-up of relief regulations to compel able-bodied relief clients to accept "suitable jobs" when offered them.

And he defined a "suitable job" as one which the person on relief was capable of handling and which would pay him as much or more than he had been receiving on the dole.

California, for the most part, will applaud that decision, and California agriculture, in particular, will hope that Mr. Chambers sticks to his guns and translates his policy into a working reality. For farmers, who are among the states biggest taxpayers, and who therefore pay a goodly share of California's multi-million dollar bounty to the army on relief, have, in many instances, found their relief contributions being used against them in an effort to force increases in farm wages.

All too frequently, in the past, relief officials have pursued the policy of advising relief recipients that they didn't need to take work proffered them, unless the wages and working conditions appealed to them more than living in idleness on the dole. And not so many months ago, relief administrators deliberately attempted to jockey-up farm wage scales by promising the unemployed more money on relief than the farmer could afford to pay in wages.

That condition not only has cost California untold millions in unwarranted relief payments; it has helped to destroy morale; it has undermined character; it has put a premium on laziness and a penalty on industriousness. And it is to be hoped that the new order which Administrator Chambers has promulgated will help to restore love of prideful employment, as well as putting thousands of men back to work and thereby reducing the number on relief rolls.

"It has been our policy to oust from the rolls those clients who refuse suitable jobs," said Mr. Chambers, "but there has been a lot to wish for in our relationship with the State Department of Employment."

But in the future, the relief administrator asserted, close cooperation will be maintained between Robert G. Wagenet, the director of employment, and Richard Sachse, chairman of the employment commission, in an effort "to draw close together the placement service of the Department of Employment with the relief administration."

Mr. Chambers also announced that hereafter an attempt will be made to place employment offices in the same building with SRA offices in the smaller cities "to make it easy for the relief client to keep in close contact with the employment office."

And any person on relief who refuses acceptable employment, he sternly declared, will be cut off from government aid and forced to shift for himself.

So far, so good. But California and the nation as a whole have a hard row to hoe in overcoming the disastrous effects of what someone has called "the decade of decadence." It is a job which must be accomplished, if the country is to avert the catastrophe of a permanent relief class—a class of relief-bred Americans, neither capable of work nor desirous of work. For indolence breeds indolence, and relief policies, during the past ten years, have deliberately encouraged relief as a career, rather than as a helping hand in trouble.

On the credit side of the ledger, however, it should be recorded that the bi-partisan economy bloc in the Legislature is making a valiant effort to squeeze the water out of SRA stock; to halt chiseling and racketeering, and to force realization of the fact that bigger taxes for bigger relief appropriations would simply destroy employment, increase relief rolls and make a bad matter worse.

If Administrator Chambers is left alone by his political superiors, and will do his utmost to weed out the star-boarders on relief rolls and compel relief recipients, of every political faith and philosophy, to accept honorable employment when it is offered them, then it is up to taxpaying organizations to give him wholehearted support in his endeavor.

FIRE CONTROL BILL FAVORED

State's Suppression
Costs Increase As CCC
Crews Are Withdrawn

By A. G. THURMAN
Assemblyman, 6th District
SACRAMENTO.—Your legislators had a busy time last week holding two special sessions in one. The only matters taken up during the first week were those pertaining to flood control, relief and forest fire suppression. It has been reported that attempts will be made this week to bring from committee to the floor of the Assembly several of the revenue bills which have been in the revenue and taxation committee since the session first opened last January. Included in these revenue bills is the severance tax measure proposed to be placed on oil. From present indications it is unlikely that any of the revenue measures can receive the necessary 41 votes to bring them from committee to the floor.

The bill making an appropriation to the Department of Natural Resources for fire prevention and suppression was cut down from $883,605 to a little over half of that amount by the committee on conservation and later was passed out of the ways and means committee. It should pass the lower house this week. The original appropriation bill was for an amount to cover the balance of the biennium but the committee decided to allocate sufficient funds to cover the present fire season and pass another appropriation bill at the next regular session of the legislature in January, 1941. This procedure was agreeable to the Department of Natural Resources.

The reason for the appropriation at this time is due to the ruling by the federal government that the CCC boys cannot be used to fight fires on the first line of attack but

Laveroni Sues For Damages

Loss Of Arm In Auto Wreck
At Nigger Turn Cited In Complaint Asking $25,000

James E. Laveroni is the plaintiff in an action for damages against Thora Winsland and six others, filed during the weekend in Superior Court.

The complaint asks damages against Thora Winsland and each of the other defendants in the amount of $25,687.90.

Plaintiff charges that as a result of the carelessness and negligence of the principal defendant in driving, her car and a car driven by himself collided on May 20, 1939, on U. S. Route 50 about four and a half miles east of Placerville. The site of the wreck is at what is known as Nigger Turn.

The nature of the collision was such that Laveroni's left arm was so badly hurt that amputation was necessary. In addition to two "Doe defendants," other defendants in the action are Alfred Dunn, Vonda Scow, James Scow and Robert Scow, all passengers in the car driven by Thora Winsland.

PLACERVILLE COUPLE ARE WED ON FRIDAY AT CARSON CITY

Miss Betty Seymour, daughter of Mrs. A. R. Roberts, of Placerville, and Vern (Bud) Williams, were married on Friday at Carson City.

Grammar School Orchestra Concert On Wednesday

Although the community would seem to have a busy schedule of public and semi-public events, it is hoped all will remember the concert by the grammar school orchestra on Wednesday night at 8 o'clock at the school auditorium. The little folks have been practicing hard to make the concert a success, and they deserve to have a large audience.

Death Toll Fixed At 8 In Temblor

SACRAMENTO. (UP)—Gov. Culbert Olson today asked the legislature to make funds available for rehabilitation work in the Imperial Valley earthquake area, but left it to the legislature to fix the specific appropriation.

Water Lacking

EL CENTRO. (UP)—Stricken Imperial Valley rationed water against a threatened shortage today and marveled at the tremendous destructive power of an earthquake which moved highways nine feet out of line and threw up a bridge running over the land for 30 miles across the Mexican border area.

The death toll of the series of disastrous quakes which jolted eight towns in the rich agricultural valley Saturday night stood at eight, and scores of others injured. No estimate of damage was available. Officials said it will be several millions. There will be further millions loss if irrigation water supplies are suspended.

From four days to a week's supply of drinking water was available in the valley, brought across the bone-dry desert by the irrigation canals from the Colorado river to the east.

Citizens were warned to confine their household use of water to a minimum by M. J. Dowd, chief engineer of the Imperial Valley Irrigation District.

FORMALITY OUT AT INSTITUTE

Homemakers Can Feel Free To Ask Questions At Any Time During 3-Day Meeting

The first of Jane Barton's programs will feature the answer to many of the puzzling problems that beset every housewife, problems not only of cookery but of homemaking. Colorful needle sets and table setting. Everyone of the informal afternoon will be devoted to exchanging ideas and the application of art to homemaking. Mrs. Barton will give examples of good taste in selecting articles for the home.

She has planned for El Dorado County an exhibit to which local housewives are invited to contribute articles from their homes which have cost less than $1.00 but which exemplify good taste. Drawing deeply on her own experiences in presenting programs to hundreds of thousands of women, Mrs. Barton in one session will discuss and offer suggestions toward the solution of the problem of preparing meals when there are constant interruptions.

Says Mrs. Barton, "In hundreds of Homemakers programs before tens of thousands of women, I have learned at first hand the difficulties of carrying out the preparation of a meal or even the recipe in the face of a steady stream of interruptions. I have learned that there are simple methods to follow that enable this to be done, and with pleasure to myself."

"That is why I like to have my sessions kept on an absolutely informal basis with the audience free to ask questions, to comment or to suggest." Mrs. Barton is now anxious to pass these simple secrets along to her friends.

RED CROSS PRODUCTION CHAIRMAN CALLS FOR VOLUNTEERS

Anyone who will assist in the work of making these articles for the Red Cross may arrange to obtain materials by contacting Mrs. Rantz.

The City Court found six charged with drunkenness guilty on Monday morning and all were given jail sentences, suspended on condition they leave town. One of the six was fined $6.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Baumhoff and son, Oscar, arrived Saturday from Centerville, Idaho, to assist in the preparations for the opening, May 30th of their new Strawberry Resort.

Growers Meet On Tuesday

Nomination Of Member To Fresh Bartlett Advisory Board Is Chief Business

Growers of Bartlett pears in El Dorado County who market such pears for fresh consumption within the State of California, will meet in the court room of the Superior Court, Placerville, on May 21, 1940, at 8:00 p. m. to nominate a member for the 1940 season on the Advisory Board of the Marketing Order for fresh Bartlett pears.

This marketing order was made effective by the director of agriculture, August 9, 1939, under the authority of the California Marketing Act. This program establishes minimum sizes and grades of Bartlett pears for fresh consumption in California markets.

The order provides for an advisory board of five growers and five handlers. During the 1939 season this territory was represented by Willard Wilkinson.

Under districts recently set up by the director of agriculture the following territory will be represented by each of the grower members of the advisory board for 1940:

Lake county, Mendocino county, Los Angeles and Kern counties; Placer, Nevada, Yuba, Sutter, Sacramento, Yolo and San Joaquin counties; and El Dorado county, and the balance of the state not covered by any other designated district.

Plaque Marks Site Of Telephone Incident

Mr. and Mrs. George Wickes, of Placerville, were at French Corral Sunday, where Mr. Wickes was born, and quite by accident came upon exercises dedicating the site of what is said to be the first long distance telephone conversation in California.

The call took place in 1877 over a line 68 miles long between French Corral and French Lake. The dedicatory exercises were under the auspices of Columbia Parlor of Native Daughters and the Grand President of the order, Esther Sullivan, gave the dedicatory talk. The telephone building on which the plaque was placed was erected in 1863.

Supervisor Heusner, the board chairman, was in town Monday from Shingle Springs.

Repeal 3-Day Law, State Urged

SAN FRANCISCO—Repeal of the gin marriage law and special inducements for California weddings are advocated by Dr. W. M. Dickie, state health director, to check the declining marriage rate.

He reported that marriages declined 36 per cent during the first six months the law requiring premarital examinations was in effect. The decline in El Dorado county was 50 per cent.

"The gin marriage law serves no purpose now that the state has the much more socially valuable law requiring blood tests and examinations for syphilis before marriage," Dr. Dickie said.

Value of the premarital law is demonstrated by the fact that premarital blood tests have indicated the presence of syphilis in 921 persons. Not only do the tests protect the fiancée, but they also protect the health of any babies who might be born to the marriage, Dr. Dickie said.

Carol Land, who has been pitching baseball longer than a large number of the Bartlett followers have been watching it, proved the truth of the saying that "Life begins at 40" Sunday afternoon when he turned in a 5 to 4 win for the Barts over the Lincoln club, in their regular Placer-Nevada league game.

The contest, played at Marcus P. Bennett, Jr., Memorial Park, was Land's first start of the season, although he had been called upon on numerous occasions as a relief hurler.

The veteran got off to a bad first inning with Lincoln making four hits count for three tallies, and added one more in the second.

Trailing 4 to 0, things looked pretty bad, not only for Land but for the Bartlets in general. But just as Land got his bad inning out of his system, so did his mates get their errors in the field over with, and then everybody settled down to play ball.

Lincoln got two hits in the third but failed to ring the cash register and in the fourth frame, the Bartlets banged out five hits and made them count for as many runs, to make the count 5 and 4.

NAZIS DRIVE TOWARD CHANNEL AS ALLIES DEFEND PARIS

Swedes Deny German Permission To Ship Supplies
Over Rail Line To Norway; Italy Is Reported
Ready To Enter War On Short Notice

Attention is directed to another in the series of maps of the war zones, supplied by United Press, which will be found on Page Two of this paper, and which will lend graphic interest to an interpretation of today's reports of action on the western front.

ROME (UP)—Italy was believed ready today to enter the war on short notice. Fascist leaders, presumably with Benito Mussolini's approval, warned the nation to prepare for war and it was reported that Mussolini had turned down flatly President Roosevelt's appeal for peace.

Demand Rejected

Stockholm (UP)—(By telephone to New York)—Sweden has rejected German demands for permission to ship materials and men across Sweden for the relief of the besieged and weakening German garrison at Narvik, Norway, unimpeachable sources said today.

By UNITED PRESS
Allied armies struck back today, checked the German offensive toward Paris and fought furiously to halt Nazi mechanized columns still pounding toward the English Channel.

Adolf Hitler's armies appeared to be concentrating their greatest power in a smashing drive through Belgium and northern France toward the channel ports. The fiercest of the fighting was along a shifting front that touched the Somme, Sambre and Oise rivers.

The German high command today claimed to have taken San Quentin (which Paris denied at 9 a. m. EDT) and pushed on toward Cambrai and Peronne after repulsing a French-Belgian counter attack with heavy losses near Meusebeuge.

This advance, according to the Germans, put their tanks and armored cars within about 65 miles of the mouth of the river Somme, on the English channel, from which a Blitzkrieg blow could be struck at England. The Germans said the enemy was "retreating" in the Somme sector, scene of some of the fiercest battles of the World War.

The high command in Berlin, however, did not dispute French statements that the Germans had failed to push past the Rethel front, some 65 miles from Paris, although it said that a French counter attack from Laon had been repulsed.

The result of the new program of counter attack launched by Gen. Maxime Weygand immediately after he was put in command of the Allied forces appeared to have had some effect.

Jane Hall, girl detective, is summoned to the home of Emery Harding on Skeleton Island, off Maine, to guard his daughter Audrey, whose life has been threatened in a letter, typewritten in red, demanding that Harding relinquish a valuable ruby he bought from an old sea captain Albert Santrey. He also sends for his friend Bruce Kirby, young museum curator. Shortly afterward, Santrey is murdered on the beach—killed by a deadly snake's venom injected with a hypodermic needle. Among the house guests are Frank Bitherbee, Audrey's fiancé; Dr. Straater, family physician, and his wife; Dr. Toler, snake expert; and Robert Castian Harding's lawyer. Later on the same night, a group of the men are horrified to find Harding writhing on the lawn in front of the house.

CHAPTER XX

THEY ALL stood transfixed for a moment, staring at Harding's prostrate figure there on the grass. Then Kirby turned swiftly to Bitherbee.

"Give me a hand with him! Get him to the house!"

Bitherbee needed no urging. He bent down grasped Harding by the shoulders and lifted Kirby took both legs. They moved toward the house, nearly tripping in their hurry. Toler and Straater followed the latter still retaining his grasp on Ah Lee.

"Keep the women in the living room," Kirby wanted to Toler as they entered the house. "Straater you come upstairs with us. And let Ah Lee go, you ass!"

Straater turned red, let the boy go, and followed Kirby and Bitherbee as they carried Harding upstairs. They put Harding on the bed in his room and Kirby immediately started to remove the stricken man's outer clothes.

THERE was a clink as something fell from Harding's coat to the floor.

"The hypodermic!" cried Bitherbee, pointing. "The venom!"

"Never mind!" snapped Kirby. "Here—help me turn him over. That thing fell from his coat. The injection must have been made in the back!"

It had been. A little red dot testified to this. Straater dashed to get his medical kit while Kirby bent down over the unconscious man and applied his lips to the needle mark, sucking on it and depositing the withdrawn venom on a handkerchief in his hand.

"Won't that hurt you?" asked Bitherbee.

"If I had an open sore in my mouth yes, I haven't," Kirby continued in his first-aid measures.

Bitherbee took out a handkerchief, stooped over, and picked up the hypodermic needle, being careful not to touch it with his fingers. He wrapped it in the handkerchief and placed it on a table against the wall.

Kirby saw his action and nodded. "Good."

Dr. Straater returned with his black bag. He snapped it open brought out a scalpel and motioned Kirby away from the bed. Then he lanced the needle mark in Harding's back several times. The area around the injection began to bleed.

"Suction cup," he snapped. Kirby found the suction cup in the bag and handed it to Straater who applied it to the wound.

"How about serum?" Kirby asked.

"Have none," Kirby cried. "Oh lord!" Kirby cried. "We can't save him without it!"

"WE'LL have to do our best," said Dr. Straater. "Mix me a solution of potassium permanganate."

Dr. Toler burst into the room. "The ladies are all right," he said. "They do not know anything is seriously wrong. I told them Emery sprained his ankle."

"Toler," said Kirby, "have you any serum?"

"Antivenin? Yes, Herr Kirby, ten cubic centimeters of polyvalent in my room."

"Get it!"

"Ja, ja!"

"And your hypodermic syringe!" Kirby pushed the German from the room. "Hurry!"

Meanwhile, Harding's breathing had become very labored. His neck muscles showed signs of paralysis. He was covered with a copious sweat and his skin was a deathly white.

Kirby mixed the permanganate solution and handed it to Straater. The doctor disengaged the suction cup and washed the wound with the solution. After this he applied his stethoscope to Harding's heart.

"Hm," he mumbled. "That's bad."

"Heart paralysis?"

"Yes, I was afraid of that. Where the devil is—"

DR. TOLER flew into the room at that instant and handed Straater a syringe.

"It's all prepared, Herr Doktor. Intramuscular injection is best."

"You don't say!" snapped Straater.

He emptied the contents of the syringe into Harding. He applied the stethoscope again and listened for several minutes. Harding groaned stirred but did not regain consciousness.

"Better," muttered Straater. "Heart's coming round."

"Seems like awfully quick unconsciousness for Crotalus terrificus venom," remarked Kirby.

"Yes," said Dr. Toler.

"Wasn't the venom," said Dr. Straater. "He was struck on the back of the head. Knocked him out. There's a bruise." He took the stethoscope from his ears. "Well, that's all we can do for a while. He may need more serum later."

"Hm!" cried Toler. "There is no more!"

"In that case," Dr. Straater said solemnly. "I'm afraid that his chances are slim. Very slim."

Kirby groaned.

can be used in second line of attack and emergencies. Last year and for several years past CCC boys have been used on fire suppression crews by the state. Under the new ruling the State Board of Forestry now must replace these crews with other men along with the necessary trucks and equipment all of which were formerly furnished by the CCC. Under the proposed plan several new fire suppression crews will be stationed throughout the sixth assembly district as well as in other parts of the state. Your assemblyman, knowing the value of good fire fighting men and equipment is the best kind of fire insurance supported this bill in both the conservation and the ways and means committee.

Your legislature last week passed a resolution asking the Governor to include in another special call a reorganization of state relief so that the legislature can adopt legislation which it believes to be to the best interest of the people of the state. Under the present call the legislature is somewhat restricted as to legislation on relief. Indications, however, are that the Governor will not accede to the wishes of the majority of the legislators. In that event it is probable that another stop gap relief bill will be passed allocating funds until the next regular session convenes.

The flood control measure which the Governor has asked the legislature to pass ran into a snag last Friday when the first bill came up for passage on the floor of the lower house. It lacked but six votes on the final roll call. In defeating this bill, which had the support of the economy-minded members, it was apparent that those not supporting the bill desired allocations for their districts as far north as Del Norte County. The bill which was defeated allocated funds for the Sacramento valley levee repairs and was in no sense a "pork barrel" bill. It is possible that an attempt to reconsider the vote of the bill defeated may be taken up this week.

QUADRILLE CLUB WINS SILVER TROPHY AT FROG JUBILEE

The Pioneer Quadrille Club participated in the festivities at the Jumping Frog Jubilee at Angels Camp Sunday with three sets of dancers.

Since Columbia was the only other community represented by a Quadrille Club, the Pioneer Club entered only one set in competition.

Following the contest, the judges divided the $50 prize money between the two sets evenly, and then awarded the Pioneer Club the silver trophy emblematic of the Mother Lode championship.

ELECTRIC COOKING and WATER HEATING Is Fast... Dependable

Make a complete change in your kitchen—the change thousands of California modern housekeepers are making to electric cooking and water heating. Be done with a slow time-wasting, patience-trying cook stove and water heater that take a half-hour or more to serve you. See the beautiful new Electric Ranges and the smartly styled Automatic Electric Water Heaters now on special display everywhere. You will be surprised at how little these kitchen servants cost and how reasonable they are to operate. You will like how they work too, faster, cleaner and entirely automatic. A small down payment will place these modern electric servants in your home.

MORE THAN 200 ATTEND OPENING NIGHT AT SILVER FORK

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Sly of Silver Fork Recreational Center, which opened to the public Saturday night, report a successful time when more than three hundred enthusiastic fun makers from all parts of the county, friends from Sacramento valley and the bay region, American river summer home and resort owners turned out to take part in the gala festivities. Dinner and dancing were the feature attractions.

"Everything went off in ship-shape," said Mr. Sly. "Although we made ample preparation to receive a large crowd, we had no idea there would be so many. Fortunately we were able to take care of everyone's needs and I'm sure that all had a marvelous time."

Mr. and Mrs. Sly wish to express their appreciation to the many friends who visited the new place and for all the kind words of praise which were spoken about the hospitality of Silver Fork.

THE SPIRIT OF

by JOHN CLINTON

Sometime I suppose I'll learn to keep my great big mouth shut! Because I'm always getting a lecture by my betters. This time it was on Traffic Nerves!

As you know, my company's opened a Clinic to study Traffic Nerves, even published a 32-page book about how to get rid of 'em.

I was at lunch with some of the men who operate the Clinic the other day and I said: "What's this Traffic Nerve, a gag? Boy did I get my ears pinned back!"

They dragged me up to the lab and showed me graphs of what Traffic does to your nervous system — of how your pulse jumps when a guy suddenly darts out in front of you, or when you stall in the middle of the main street!

Then they showed me another stack of reports from the refinery — showing how they had blended this NEW 76 gasoline to overcome some of the causes of Traffic Nerves!

Well, you never saw more convincing proof. Union Oil engineers have really contributed something to our happiness in driving. For 76 really makes cars handle properly in modern traffic.

Look, next time you see the big orange and blue 76 sign, pop in and get a copy of "How To Reduce Traffic Nerves." It's got 32 pages and a flock of pictures. It'll help you get more fun out of driving.

flavor combinations, Mrs. Barton has arranged a program of inspired trimmings. Unlike any cooking school program the Homecraft Institute features meals that are planned for the average pocketbook that are simple, quick, and easy to prepare, and that draw on local products which are easily obtained.

Pacific Arts Stressed

Not only in the homemaking part of the program, but in the needlecraft and cooking section as well, Mrs. Barton has drawn on western home arts for this year's feature. The program includes many Mexican and Hawaiian recipes, and the simple instructions make it easy to prepare and produce such delicious and appetizing results that audiences will find new inspiration and delight in adapting these dishes to the western American talents.

Because Mrs. Barton realizes the demand on housewives' time programs will end promptly. The doors will open at 1:30 with the program beginning at 2:00 and ending at 4:30. Everyone is invited to attend, for the Homecraft Institute is a free enterprise brought up under joint auspices of the Placerville Republican, the Mountain Democrat and the Pacific Rural Press. So reserve these afternoons and one evening on your engagement pad now. Bring your friends to enjoy with you new pleasures at Jane Barton's Institute.

NATIVE SONS OPEN 33RD GRAND PARLOR AT BAKERSFIELD

Memorial services for deceased grand officers were to be held Monday afternoon and in the evening a torchlight procession was scheduled.

NEW FAST DRY MACA YEAST

Works in a Hurry—Needs No Refrigeration!

MACA is a new form of yeast for home baking—no other equals its unique combination of advantages. About two years ago, MACA was announced in a restricted district. Since then the demand has grown by figurative leaps and bounds. And this, mind you, with practically no sales effort or drive behind it.

What does this indicate? To us it seems an extraordinary endorsement of the product itself, mute testimony that housewives like it! Well, why do they like it so much? These may be the reasons:

(1) MACA is a dry yeast, yet it works fast. (2) It is keepable simply on the pantry shelf. That is, it retains its ferment quality for days or even weeks without refrigeration.

Try MACA YEAST today. You can get it at most grocers' or your store will gladly order it for you.
